What is Al Sharq Forum?

Al Sharq Forum is an independent, international non-profit organization that aims to consolidate the values of pluralism and justice, while developing long-term strategies and programs that contribute to the political development, economic prosperity, and social cohesion of the people of the Al Sharq region and the world.

THE FORUM CONSISTS OF THREE PILLARS WORKING IN TANDEM TO ENSURE THE REALIZATION OF ITS MISSION

- Al Sharq Strategic Research
- Al Sharq Youth
- Al Sharq Academia

Message from the President

“The Al Sharq region has long been a mosaic of cultures, religions and ethnicities. This diversity will continue to be the most important pillar for building a stable and prosperous future for the region and the world. Since 2011, Al Sharq Forum has been carrying this spirit and taking it to its furthest ends. With its three pillars, the Forum is establishing a solid infrastructure for hope and stability.”

Wadah Khanfar
Pluralism is a social necessity achieved by securing human rights
We believe that diversity is universal, and that the signs of the psychological wellbeing of a society lie in its tolerance, vitality and interaction. We thus call for dialogue to deal with different or conflicting ideas, perceptions, and visions.

Our decisions are based on our collective consciousness
We believe that public affairs should be addressed through a process of negotiation among the constituents of each community.

Our values are fundamentally universal and humane
We believe that the values underpinning our consciousness should be those of a universal message, seeking goodness, justice, and ethics, and thus apply everywhere.

Towards an inclusive public discourse
We believe that public affairs should be addressed through a process of negotiation among the constituents of each community.

Grasping lessons from our past while consciously living our present
We believe that the values underpinning our consciousness should be of a universal message, seeking goodness, justice, and ethics, and belong to them everywhere.

The future is auspicious
We believe that our countries are facing a historical transitional phase, and that we are called upon to build the future with a new spirit.

Knowledge has intended goals and purposes
Science and knowledge are the pillars upon which the human future will be built. We are thus firm believers in prioritizing scientific research and methodological, epistemological thinking and in linking them to the highest ethical objectives.

An equitable, virtuous moral economy
We believe that any economic system that is detached from moral values is a project of enslavement and hegemony, and therefore will not achieve security nor prosperity for the world.

A think tank that looks to undertake impartial, rigorous research to promote the ideals of democratic participation, an informed citizenry, multi-stakeholder dialogue and social justice.

Through its research programs, conferences and publications, and in line with the objectives of the Forum, Al Sharq Strategic Research outlines three central areas of focus: democratization and good governance, regional and international order, and transformation of ideologies and identities.
Events
The events serve as dynamic platforms bringing together researchers, academics, experts and activists to foster informed dialogue and knowledge-sharing, and to promote a culture of reasoned public discourse.

Programs
Thematic research tracks in MENA politics with various task forces. There are two currently running tracks: the MENA Security Program and the Political Islam Program.

Blog

To address the issues and challenges facing the Al Sharq region, Al Sharq Strategic Research has launched two programs, namely the New Security Arrangements for the MENA Region and the Al Sharq Program on Political Islam. By bringing together experts, academics, policymakers and researchers from various fields, Al Sharq Strategic Research aims to increase the level of understanding and the quality of policy-making concerning the Al Sharq region. It also attempts to engage with regional issues from a regional perspective and hopes to offer viable solutions to the most pressing problems. These two initiatives deliver their findings in a variety of forms, ranging from expert briefs and research papers to video recordings and infographics.

New Security Arrangements for the MENA Region

Political Islam
NEW SECURITY ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE MENA REGION

The collapse of the regional order has made security failures in the Al Sharq region ever more apparent. State failures, violent extremism, the emergence of militia groups as regional forces, chemical warfare, and the arms race are among the many critical security problems that call for the development of new security arrangements for the Al Sharq region.

This dire need for new security arrangements has led Al Sharq Strategic Research to create a task force to address the security problems of the region from a regional perspective and offer recommendations for security alternatives.
Throughout the past four decades, researchers and analysts have written extensively on political Islam movements (PIMs) in an attempt to understand their ideology, political behavior and internal culture. However, the Arab uprisings and their aftermath ushered in new dynamics at the national and regional levels, and unleashed deep and ongoing processes of transformation within these movements. This has obligated analysts to engage in a renewed effort to understand these movements and to develop novel conceptual frameworks suited to the new and shifting terrains.

In light of this, Al Sharq Strategic Research launched its program on Political Islam with the participation of leading scholars and analysts specialized in the study of such movements.

Political Islam Movements in the post-Arab uprisings period, July 4, 2019
Organized in partnership with the Issam Fares Institute at the American University of Beirut, the panel looked at how ‘Political Islam’ movements and parties acted and reacted in response to the different challenges and opportunities created by the Arab uprisings. This included massive mobilization that induced leadership changes (Tunisia and Egypt), limited demonstrations with a reformist agenda (Morocco, Jordan and Kuwait) and bloody civil war (Syria and Yemen).

Towards New Security Arrangements For The Mena Region, May 6, 2018
Al Sharq Forum, together with the Afro-Middle East Centre (AMEC), hosted the Third Annual Security Conference in Istanbul to discuss “New Security Arrangements for the MENA Region.” The conference followed up the theme of the 2017 edition, “Towards a New Security Architecture in the MENA Region.” In 2017, the conference established the need for new security arrangements in the region, and in 2018 it deliberated on the objectives and details of new security frameworks in the region.
Europe and Its Neighbourhood 2019
December 10, 2019

The 5th annual conference titled, “Europe and its Neighbourhood: Conflict Prevention and Crisis Management in the 21st Century,” focused on how Europe and its leaders can respond to the challenges of conflict management and prevention. At a time of uncertainty for Europe’s political ideals and its vision for a common future, its ability to shape and influence developments in its neighbouring regions is a more open question than at any time in the recent past.

Political Trends in The Al Sharq Region After Arab Uprisings: The Transformation Of Political Islam In A Changing Regional Order, February, 2018

Despite all its shortcomings, the Arab uprisings have permanently altered the political dynamics in the Al Sharq region and left a lasting impact on its social and political structures, including political Islam movements (PIMs). After decades of limited political participation, suppression, marginalization, co-option and containment, PIMs found themselves in an utterly new reality. Overall, the Arab uprisings have changed the dynamics of inclusion/exclusion of PIMs in the Al Sharq region in a wide variety of ways. Defections, radicalization, de-politicization, moderation and organizational re-modeling are just some examples of the new dynamics that have been triggered by the Arab uprisings and brought onto center stage.
Al Sharq Internship Program is a 6-month paid internship for senior undergraduate students or recent graduates who are interested in studying the MENA region. The scheme consists of two stages. In the first stage, the interns undergo a training program where they attend critical thinking, reading, writing and presentation skills training workshops. During the second stage of their internship, the interns are expected to draw on their newly acquired skills to produce research papers under the guidance of their assigned mentors.

Regional Events

This unique event was conducted over three main sessions focusing respectively on youth participation in democratic processes, media as an empowering tool, and the ways in which innovative youth can contribute to the economic growth and the uplifting of South African society.

The 3-day camp brought together innovative youth from various backgrounds to shed light on their hidden potential, and to use this opportunity to explore feasible solutions to significant challenges that were presented during the event.

The Paris Hub organized this competition with the aim of providing a platform for young people to present their projects and compete to serve their communities. The First prize winner was Muhammad Abu Matar from Gaza, for his project Tashkeel3D, a startup focused on the manufacture of medical tools for conflict zones.

The hackathon aimed to collect data on how media outlets in the MENA Region reflected the terrorism discourse, from the Arab Spring until today.
